

APPRENTICESHIP ACADEMY

Case Study

Erin Rochford

Health and Safety Apprentice

Erin Rochford from Newcastle is employed at North Tyneside Council, as an apprentice SHE Advisor.

Erin has started a Health and Safety apprenticeship with North Tyneside Council. Previously she attended Sacred Heart Sixth Form. In her new role, Erin will work across the housing, property & construction services assisting in the support of a diverse range of SHE services.

Erin said: I started as a SHE apprentice in October 2020 and have loved every minute since. I'm really enjoying my apprenticeship and have already had the chance to work alongside some great colleagues who are also very supportive.

We said: Erin has started well, showing a great enthusiasm and aptitude for the role. Her attitude is very positive, and she will do well in her future employment.

If you have ambition and determination, our apprenticeships are an excellent option for you. You will receive formal training to gain a recognised qualification, alongside gaining technical knowledge, practical experience and wider skills you need for employment and a future career.
